DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
Agricultural Marketing Service

7 CFR Part 205

[Docket Number TM-02-03]

RIN 0581-AA40

National Organic Program; Proposed Amendments to the National
List of Allowed and Prohibited Substances

AGENCY: Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA.

ACTION: Proposed rule .I find it amazing that agriculture, our oldest industry in human history which I would think would be the most advanced industry by far has devolved to the point where our essential foods are lined with hazardous products and in turn make healthy foods the opposite or diminish their value to where we have to consume more in order to obtain needed vitamins/minerals or pop multivitamin pills to substitute while ingesting extra substances to flush out our systems...government has failed to open the door to greater ideas in the process of making agriculture safe and more potent for human health and has instead opened the doors to destructive methods that are good for temporary financial gain while human health deteriorates and better foods are harder to find and the industry has become a focus of suspicion rather than respected and intelligent. We ingest strange chemicals produced by strangers and those in charge seem more concerned about fancy labelling and catchy slogans that sell instead of upholding quality substance in the product itself and proving it with detailed science.....I would like to know how many ceo's and scientists who evaluate & produce the synthetic chemicals that go into our foods would regularly eat the contaminated products they are so enthusiastic about selling....if they even care about their own health, and if they do not why would any sane person(s) think they are competent to organize and control one of the most important aspects of human life that has direct influence on many aspects of public health and even influences how people behave and direct their own lives.....healthy bodies, healthy minds would contribute towards building a healthier society.....somehow it seems to me that the agriculture industry is another one that has been sabotaged and the public gets the ass end of the deal as always. How long do you think the public will take this? The pessimistic view individuals in powerful positions have of the public is self destructive.
